

The British Association of Sport and Exercise Sciences
Annual Report and Financial Statements
2013-2014

The Board Report

The Board has pleasure in presenting its annual report and the financial statements of the British Association of Sport and Exercise Sciences (BASES) for the year ended 31 March 2014. The main attention of the Board has been given to the items identified in the Strategic Plan 2011-14. The governance of the Association was undertaken in accordance with our rules and articles.

Research, evidence-based practice and distribution of knowledge

The Association has continued to provide quality networking and continuing professional development opportunities, including conferences, webinars and workshops. BASES Conference 2013 took place at the University of Central Lancashire (UCLAN) in September 2013 with the theme entitled New Direction in Sports and Exercise Sciences: What are the next steps. The conference provided delegates with the opportunity to engage in discussions relating to the next generation of developments in the sport and exercise sciences. The 2012 Olympic Games highlighted how scientific innovation can promote world leading performance, and also promote a legacy aimed at enhancing the health-related fitness of a nation.

“2014 onwards will see a new format to the BASES annual conference with a break from the tradition of inviting members to apply to host the BASES annual conference at their own university.”

2014 onwards will see a new format to the BASES annual conference with a break from the tradition of inviting members to apply to host the BASES annual conference at their own university. The annual conference will be organised in-house by BASES with support from an external conference organising company, The Media Group. The Board has appointed a Scientific Programme Committee tasked with identifying expert speakers representing current highly relevant topics and issues in sport and exercise sciences. BASES Conference 2014 will be a 2-day event, taking place at the prestigious St. George's Park - The FA's brand new, state-of-the-art talent development centre.

The University of Portsmouth hosted the BASES Student Conference 2014 in April, with the theme of Putting the Pieces Together. The conference programme was based around multidisciplinary, thus bringing the pieces of sport and exercise science together. The real strength of the conference was the line-up of keynote speakers, with presentations from Dr Katherine Grainger CBE, Nigel Walker, Dr Steve Ingham FBASES, Prof Mike Tipton and Chris Neville. The conference was attended by 307 delegates from 56 institutions nationally and internationally. With over 270 student presentations, 21 exhibitors, and six externally hosted workshops, the conference was a resounding success offering delegates an opportunity to present their work and consider their future in sport and exercise science.

BASES is delighted to be sponsoring the 1st Association for Applied Sport Psychology (AASP) International Student Conference on 21-22 February 2015 at Loughborough University. This is a student-run conference for students. Its purpose is to create an opportunity for students interested in the domain of sport, exercise, health and well-being psychology to share knowledge and build networks for future research and development.

The Biomechanics Interest Group (BIG) continues to be a success with the 29th BIG Easter Meeting, held at Manchester Metropolitan University attracting over 100 delegates with a programme of research communications, practical demonstrations and social activities.

BASES organised 10 workshops, which were attended by 187 delegates. Two of these were new workshops and seven workshops were linked with the supervised experience programme, including four supervisee entry workshops. A working party is currently developing a workshop entitled Safeguarding Welfare in Sport and Exercise Science. The workshop has a focus on protecting the sport and exercise scientist as well as those they work with, whether a child or adult. Due to the encompassing nature of the workshop, it is proposed to include it as part of the Supervised Experience suite of core workshops to ensure that those working towards accreditation are provided with the tools necessary to work as autonomous professionals. The working party comprised Prof Richard Davison FBASES, Dr Sam Fawkner, Emma Kavanagh, Dr Zoe Knowles FBASES, Dr Andy Miles FBASES, John Mills, Dr Daniel Rhind and Prof Craig Williams FBASES. Two webinars ('You might be fit now but you'll be fat by forty: the inevitability of human sloth' and 'The playing attitude: why we can't think technically if we want to perform at our best') ran in June and October, with a total of 213 registrants.

BASES has expanded its publication portfolio. In addition to The Sport and Exercise Scientist (Editor - Dr Claire Hitchings), there is now a new online Journal of Applied Case Studies in Sport and Exercise Science (JACSSES). JACSSES is a journal devoted to representing, promoting and informing applied practice in sport and exercise sciences: capturing real life accounts of scientifically informed professional experiences and exploring the ways that contemporary research in sport and exercise science informs applied practice. JACSSES presents case studies conducted with individuals, pairs (e.g., coach-athlete, athlete-athlete), small groups, teams and sport/health organisations. Its Editors are Dr Richard Keegan and Dr Christian Swann. Members who have produced case studies for accreditation applications or other purposes should consider submitting these to the journal: <http://jacsses.bases.org.uk>

“This year, BASES produced three new expert statements on Exercise Therapy for people with Chronic Kidney Disease, Trainability during Childhood and Adolescence, and the Effects of Aerobic Exercise on Appetite Control and Energy Intake.”

Over the past 12 months, the Journal of Sports Sciences has undergone a number of important modifications that can be summarised in its newly published Aims and Scope. The Journal has an international reputation for publishing articles of a high standard and is both Medline and Thomson Reuters listed (2013 Impact Factor: 2.095, 21/81 in Sports Sciences journals). The Editor-in Chief is Prof Alan Nevill. The Journal publishes research on various aspects of the sports and exercise sciences, including anatomy, biochemistry, biomechanics, performance analysis, physiology, psychology, sports medicine and health, as well as coaching and talent identification, kinanthropometry and other interdisciplinary perspectives. In addition to reports of original research, the Journal also publishes review articles, case studies, letters to the editor, short communications and book reviews.

The BASES annual awards scheme continues to support excellence and the grants scheme provides financial support for BASES members to attend international conferences. This year, BASES produced three new expert statements on Exercise Therapy for people with Chronic Kidney Disease, Trainability during Childhood and Adolescence, and the Effects of Aerobic Exercise on Appetite Control and Energy Intake. There are now 17 expert statements available for download: www.bases.org.uk/BASES-Expert-Statements

BASES Fellowship recognises esteemed professional achievement, skills, knowledge and service to BASES and the sport and exercise science community made by BASES professional members. One new Fellowship was awarded in 2013 to Prof A Mark Williams, which brings the total of BASES Fellows to 77.

High professional standards

There are now 176 BASES members currently undertaking supervised experience with 110 registered supervisors and 62 reviewers supporting the scheme. BASES has 285 accredited members, 147 Chartered Scientists, 33 Certified Exercise Practitioners and 23 members hold High Performance Sport Accreditation. There are now 22 accredited physiology laboratories.

The BASES Undergraduate Endorsement Scheme has 33 courses listed with Southampton Solent University and the University of Sunderland successfully endorsing their courses over the past year and Manchester Metropolitan University, Sheffield Hallam University, University of South Wales and University of Winchester have also successfully re-endorsed their courses.

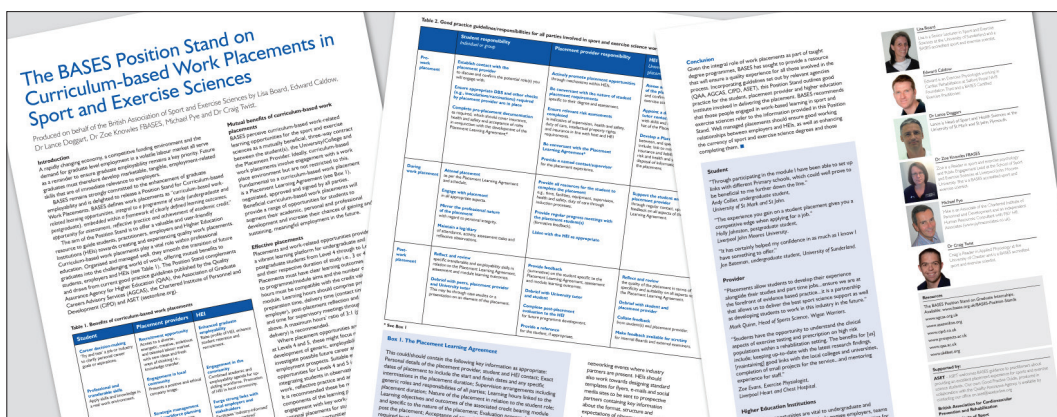

BASES has partnered with Our Mobile Health to deliver a mobile app library. Now BASES members can easily find high quality apps relevant to their field, which they can apply to their work as well as personal use. Our Mobile Health will be providing BASES with a branded app library of quality mobile apps, reviewed by BASES members. App selection will be based on a series of technical and peer reviews, to ensure that they meet the needs, policies and safety standards, which BASES members expect and look for. BASES will provide quality assurance to sports and exercise apps for Our Mobile Health, through a panel of expert reviewers of digital health-related apps.

Represent sport and exercise sciences

Membership at 1 May 2014 was 2,141 (2013: 2,231), comprising 910 professional members, 985 student members, 71 graduate members, 52 overseas members, 33 affiliate members, 76 Fellows and 14 retired members.

An outstanding achievement was that three Fellows, nominated by BASES, were recognised within the Top 100 Scientists in a list published by the Science Council. The Fellows recognised within this prestigious group of scientists were: Prof Clyde Williams OBE, FBASES - Developer/Translational Scientist category; Prof Alison McConnell FBASES - Entrepreneur Scientist category; and Prof Greg Whyte OBE, FBASES - Communicator Scientist category.

Following last year's successful development of the BASES Position Stand on Graduate Internships, BASES launched The BASES Position Stand on Curriculum-based Work Placements in Sport and Exercise Sciences. The aim of the Position Stand is to offer a valuable and user-friendly resource to guide students, practitioners, employers and Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) towards creating and experiencing quality work placements. The Position Stand complements and draws from current good practice guidelines published by the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education (QAA), the Association of Graduate Careers Advisory Services (AGCAS), the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD) and ASET (asetonline.org). The stand was produced on behalf of BASES by Lisa Board, Edward Caldow, Dr Lance Daggart, Dr Zoe Knowles FBASES, Michael Pye and Dr Craig Twist. It is supported by ASET, British Association for Cardiovascular Prevention and Rehabilitation, The English Institute of Sport, SkillsActive and Sport and Recreation Alliance. We hope this stand will help to ensure a quality experience for all those involved in work placements as part of taught degree programmes.

BASES has also created a specific guidance position statement for employing sport and exercise scientists in Public Health and the NHS - A guide to employing sport and exercise graduates in the NHS and Public Health. Prof John Buckley FBASES and Gordon McGregor were instrumental in developing this guide, in which BASES recommends that it is essential for sport and exercise scientists working in the NHS and Public Health to demonstrate competence by holding an appropriate qualification: Certified Exercise Practitioner (CEP), BASES Accredited Sport and Exercise Scientist or Chartered Scientist. These qualifications verify the knowledge and skills to work across health service domains from public health/education and promotion, to primary and secondary prevention care and clinical research.

The eleventh annual BASES Heads of Department forum took place in Leeds in March 2014 hosting over fifty attendees representing 28 Universities. This annual event continues to provide an effective source of networking and updating for sport and exercise science heads of department.

BASES is pleased to announce five new Divisions - Biomechanics and Motor Behaviour, Physiology and Nutrition, Psychology, Physical Activity for Health, and Sport and Performance. The aims of these divisions are to provide 'networks' for members to engage with like-minded sport and exercise scientists and to support effective strategy implementation.

Each division will have its own focus areas. For example, the Division of Psychology has two important areas of attention. The first of these areas relates to pursuing the scope of potential relationships with the Division of Sport and Exercise Psychology (DSEP) within the British Psychological Society, and assisting graduates in sport and exercise sciences to have improved routes to the professional title 'Sport and Exercise Psychologist'. Various potential initiatives and ideas have been discussed, which may impact on the existing BASES accreditation for those focused on sport and exercise psychology in the future. It is hoped that a fuller discussion regarding these professional, education and training issues will occur during the forthcoming year. The second area of attention has been on developing appropriate educational opportunities and professional development for members. In this respect, the psychology division has already planned and promoted a psychology webinar and two one day workshops for members due to be delivered within the coming year.

BASES is now working in partnership with UK Anti-Doping (UKAD), developing a definitive commitment to clean sport. By signing up to the statement, BASES is supporting the UKAD and World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) position that "cheating, including doping, in sport is fundamentally contrary to the spirit of sport and undermines the otherwise positive impact of sport on society". BASES will work with UKAD to develop an education and information programme, supporting staff and members to operate within the anti-doping rules and help athletes to meet their anti-doping responsibilities.

The Association continues to be active through social media with 11,000 Followers on Twitter and over 1,800 enthusiasts registered for Facebook updates. Social media has allowed BASES to promote the work being carried out within the sport and exercise science community as well as providing a forum for discussion.

Finance

The Board reports a surplus for the year ended 31 March 2014 of £7,090. BASES is a not-for-profit organisation and as such, needs to operate on the basis that it is not seeking to make a profit over the long term and surplus should be re-invested. For the financial year 2013-14, maintaining a reserve between £116,000 and £232,000 was agreed; the total reserves at 31 March 2014 were £200,621.

Acknowledgements

Finally, the Board would like to pay special tribute to those individuals who have contributed their time and energy to the Association.

“BASES is pleased to announce five new Divisions - Biomechanics and Motor Behaviour, Physiology and Nutrition, Psychology, Physical Activity for Health and Sport and Performance.”
