About us

Established in 1984, the British Association of Sport and Exercise Sciences (BASES) is the professional membership body representing the largest sport and exercise science network in the UK.

Our mission is to deliver excellence in sport and exercise sciences. BASES promotes scientific research, encourages evidence-based practise and develops high professional standards for the sport and exercise science sector. We have over 2,500 members.

Every year, BASES runs a world-class sport and exercise science conference that has a proven reputation for delivering a superb programme of internationally recognised speakers and high-quality conference facilities.

Our annual conferences routinely attract over 300 delegates representing a wide range of disciplines and professions, including academics, practitioners, researchers, consultants and directors from across the sport and exercise sector.
